OVERHEARD

"Tracy's work comes straight from the heart. True to Scripture, her storytelling is applied with dedication and enthusiasm. Not only is she a true master of her trade but she also possesses a gift for teaching in a practical and understanding manner."

—Rev. (Dr.) Francois Sieberhagen
Media Consultant for the United Bible Society in Africa

"The only time my five-year-old son, Sam, ever listened in church was the day Tracy told stories. On the way home he and his brother, Tom, competed over who would get to retell the stories she'd told in Sunday School. Normally we have to pry their lessons out of them."

—Van Dellinger

"The impact of Tracy's visit to Australia is still being felt 15 months later. Her vivacity and particular empathy with women in Scripture brings a freshness to familiar stories which excites and exhilarates the listener. Humor, too, often lurks not far from the surface when Tracy engages an audience and we who had the privilege to hear her during her visit are still mulling over all that she shared with us. "

WORKSHOPS offered

Mulling the Biblical Text

Learn the nuts and bolts of narrative analysis and story embodiment by using the easy-to-remember acronym MULL.

Worth 1000 Words

Communication is more than just written or spoken words. What picture are you painting for your audience with your facial expressions, hand gestures, body movements, and postures? And how is this picture nuanced by tone of voice, sound effects, and pauses?

Making the Connection

Stories are perhaps the best tool for bridging gaps and linking us with other human beings. In this age of techno-communication we need more than ever to intentionally “make the connection” with other living, breathing people. Our souls depend on it.

From Text to Talkies:

Communicating the Good News in a Digital Age
The experiential world of oral narrative fits quite naturally into today's post-literate culture. This workshop will explore and model ways to combine the effective use of traditional storytelling with high-(and low!)-tech communication. Useful for worship, education, and evangelism.

Taking a Deeper Dive

Concentrating on a specific biblical story, we will utilize various methods and approaches for exploring below its surface in an attempt to experience deeper, multi-dimensional meanings. Great for spiritual formation and making a biblical story your own.

New, New Ways to Tell the Old, Old Story

Just telling the story usually does the job but occasionally situations call for a bit more. Learn a variety of ways to share your stories, including the use of numerous support materials for multiple intelligences. A favorite with educators, librarians, parents, and grandparents.

PROGRAMS performed

BIBLICAL STORIES

Tracy is always looking to increase her repertoire so feel free to request a specific story. Among those she already knows are:

Call to Conference

The bluegrass hills of Kentucky are calling us home, back to our roots as Christians and people of faith, as United Methodists and people of action, as Christian Educators and people of hope.

Wild, unbridled horses are calling us to break free to come home to the power and freedom of God's Spirit in our lives, reclaiming our pentecostal fire, inhaling deeply the breath of life, washing in the refreshing waters of our baptism, planting our feet solidly in the groundedness of God's love.

Come to Kentucky to awaken the Holy Spirit in you, to experience the divine in a new way, encountering God in the ordinary and everyday, changing lives with God's incarnational power, right here on earth.
